12:15 p.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Registration opens CLE at noon

Nathan H. Baker Trial Courtroom | Room 125

Rutgers Law School | Center for Law and Justice | 123 Washington Street | Newark, NJ 07102

This program discusses the history of sex in public accommodations law—a history essential to debates that rage today over gender and sexuality in public. This program is co-sponsored by the Rutgers Center for Gender, Sexuality, Law and Policy (CGSLP), which facilitates interdisciplinary and publicly-engaged research, curricular, and programming initiatives in furtherance of gender- and sexuality-based equity in law and policy.

Speaker:

Elizabeth Sepper

Professor of Law at Washington University School of Law

Professor Elizabeth Sepper is a scholar of religious liberty, health law, and discrimination. She has written extensively on the interactions between religion and reproductive and end-of-life healthcare. She also is one of the nation's foremost experts in the antidiscrimination obligations of public accommodations—that is, businesses, social service providers, and organizations open to the public.
